

MAJORING & MINORING

Bachelor of Music in Composition

This degree is intended for students who wish to pursue composition as a career, with the aim of preparing them for the professional arena or further study at the graduate level.

After grounding in traditional tonal harmony, specific topic areas such as species counterpoint, Baroque counterpoint, Classical sonata form, and nineteenth- and twentieth-century techniques are addressed in the core theory sequence. Ear-training is an integral part of the program. Student composers work in individual or small group lessons with faculty and guest composers and have many opportunities to hear their works performed.
