Semester of Support

After graduation, during the critical first year of teaching, the Education Department provides assistance through the S.O.S. (Semester of Support) program. Graduates in their first year of teaching return to campus to exchange ideas, receive technical assistance from the department faculty, and engage in program evaluation of the Teacher Certification Program. S.O.S. also provides on-site technical support to graduates during their first year of teaching.

Career Placement

Southwestern students enjoy widespread success in finding teaching jobs in schools located where they want to live. We've had multiple alumni awarded "Teacher of the Year" in their first or second year of teaching.
